

2019 0510 End-of-the-year pizza party and demonstrations

On the last day of classes, we gathered to celebrate the end of another semester. We recognized Physics graduations for this year and talked about graduate schools and job plans for the future. We also acknowledge students who got awards and scholarships and participated in Undergraduate Research Day. Officers for next year's SPS (Society of Physics Students) were announced.

The Physics 330 Electronics class showed us their final projects, which included a robotic arm, a light that turned off and on in response to nearby sounds, car lights that dim in response to oncoming lights, a self-leveling airplane and others.

And pizza and soda were enjoyed by all.
