The following areas have been determined to be important for successful working in all areas. Listed below is a rating scale guide for performance factors and traits that are important in the performance of the employee's job. The "overall performance" evaluation should reflect the employee's total performance, including performance factors as related to employee's responsibilities and duties as set forth in the job description.

- 1= Developing: Has limited experience. Makes mistakes, but seldom repeats mistakes after appropriate coaching. Performs essential job duties, with some coaching, and is eager to learn about position. Often misses work. Seeks advice on how to improve within the position, however, generally does not have the confidence to take risks.
- 2= Competent: Achieves results, meets standards of the position. Needs little direction in completing essential duties. Generally completes duties within time frames at acceptable quality levels. Has good attendance. Willing to improve duties but may need assistance from others to get started. May need encouragement to take risks.
- 3= Accomplished: Achieves results, exceeds standards of the position. Needs very little direction in completing basic role. Always completes duties within timeframes at acceptable quality levels, often earlier and exceeding quality levels. Looks for ways to improve daily work processes. Seldom misses work. Needs little supervision. Can perform job duties of others within the department competently. Co-workers in department come to him/her to help solve problems. Incrementally improves the basic role of their job by reducing steps and/or improving quality. Has potential to be promoted into next level. Employee would be difficult to replace. Not afraid to take calculated risks.
