

MYSTERIES OF LOCH NSSE

What Our Students Say About Their Student Experiences

Have you ever heard of the National Survey of Student Engagement (NSSE) or the Voluntary System of Accountability (VSA)?

This discussion over lunch, using spring 2007 feedback from UW-W seniors, will show how our students compare to a national peer group of respondents from public universities like ours along six dimensions of student involvement.

The presentation will include an exposition of the history of the administration of the National Survey of Student Engagement at UW-W (seven years of survey data are available to inform faculty research) and an opportunity to discuss the big picture issues of assessment and accountability in the higher education context.

Featured Presenter: Ed Furlong

Ed Furlong, Ph.D. (Political Science) is Associate Institutional Planner for Graduation and Retention Analysis at UW-Whitewater. He was previously with Purdue North Central and Northern Illinois University where he was responsible for Institutional Research and Assessment.
