Set Yourself Up for Success at UWW!

Written by
Pilar Joseph

Welcome back to campus, Warhawks!

As the semester kicks off, Career Services has a challenge for you: Make it your goal to introduce yourself to all of your professors at some point this semester during the first few weeks of classes. Push yourself to introduce yourself to them in person right after class. Let them know who you are and one thing you are looking forward to learning in their class. Feel free to also share your goals and professional interests!

So why are we challenging you to do this?

Professors are often untapped resources, with the ability to provide you with industry advice, connections, support, and/or serve as future recommendations.

In order to best serve you in these ways though, you must build relationships with them.

After your introduction, make sure to keep connecting with them throughout the semester. You can do this by being an active participant in class discussions, asking thoughtful questions during and after class, or by attending their office hours to gain additional insight into class topics. The goal is to build meaningful relationships, which not only help you gain more out of your college experience, but can also lead to additional opportunities, insight, and resources.

Take our challenge, and see how this semester is different from those where you didn't get to know your professors. Let us know how it goes!

Thank you, sponsors!

Our support from our sponsors enables us to provide the resources our students need to thrive in the pursuit of their career and professional development opportunities.
