

FISCHER SCHOLARSHIPS FOR IN-HOUSE SCHOLARS

ABOUT THE SCHOLARSHIP

The Fischer Scholarship Program is supported by a trust fund established by Professor Warren Fischer, who along with Mrs. Rose Fischer, taught for many years on the UW-Whitewater campus. Fischer Scholarships have been awarded each semester since 1978. The Fischers' goal has always been to improve the quality of geographic education and In-House Fischer Scholars are awarded on the basis of their contribution to the educational mission of the Department of Geography, Geology and Environmental Science (GGES). In-House Fischer Scholars are required to identify a faculty sponsor and work for between 50-70% of their award through teaching related projects and other activities.

The faculty and the Fischer Scholarship Selection Committee view designation as an In-House Fischer scholar as a distinct honor and privilege. In-House Fischer Scholars are expected to:

- Demonstrate intellectual growth as they advance through their program;
- Demonstrate personal growth and development as they advance through their program;
- Share their knowledge and enthusiasm with others;
- Convey a cooperative and positive attitude in performing their duties;
- Work effectively on their own with limited supervision;
- Work effectively with faculty and students;
- Display interest and initiative in tackling assignments and duties;
- Comport themselves in a respectful and professional manner in the conduct of their duties; and
- Realize they are not merely employees, they are scholars.
