Note: Participation in study away refers to the population of degree-seeking undergraduate students who participated in direct enrollment, exchange, partnership or other study abroad programs (including those sponsored by UW-Whitewater, other UW System institutions, other US-based colleges and universities or international exchange organizations), as well as international internships, service learning programs, teaching abroad programs, and UW-Whitewater Travel Study programs. The duration of study away experiences varies significantly, and may span more than one academic year. Students may participate in more than one study away program in a single academic year; as a result, the total number of participants may vary depending on the categories in which they are counted. The population of students participating in study away programs is provided by the UW-W Office of Global Experiences. Many study away programs taking place in Spring 2020 or scheduled for Summer 2020 were disrupted by the global pandemic.
