Guidelines for using Emotional Regulation Action Plans

This plan can be used with any student showing frequent behavior issues, frequent office referrals, frequent contact with counselors, and re-entry from a community-based facility. As much as possible, we want the young person to have ownership of their own plan, rather than seeing it as some kind of routine paperwork they are required to do with the adults working with them. Give encouragement and validation if working through this plan together. Others may want to take the form and fill it out on their own and then consult with staff. A combination can work also.

Basic guidelines:

- This plan belongs to the young person and should be developed when the student is calm.
- It should be done between the young person and a person or people with whom there is a relationship or a sense of trust if at all possible.
- -The entire "team" need not be assembled for this to happen.
- -The support team is intended to encourage the student to identify those people that will be most helpful in highly stressful moments.
- Take time to record contact information, so that additional people can be included beyond emergency contacts identified at enrollment.
- Parents/caregivers are essential in co-planning to improve the effectiveness of this plan.
- All those identified as on the student's "team" should be notified as such and given a copy of the plan with 24 hours of creation.
- The plan should be reviewed monthly between the student and the adult guide.
- It should also be taken out when an adult notices the student is exhibiting warning signs and after any outburst, after the student has returned to baseline.
- As an ongoing well-being plan, things can be added that are identified as triggers or supports, and things can be removed if found to be not accurate or unsuccessful.
- The plan should grow with the student.
- Strategize on how this plan could be accessed easily by key support team members electronically.
- For a student who has an IEP, consider the need for re-convening the team and/or updating the Behavior Intervention Plan to include this new emotional regulation plan.
